Celebrating 6 months of jumpstart!

We can hardly believe it: our jumpstart! nursery programme has already been in operation for six months. Our team have been working round the clock to improve nursery education: holding local sensitization meetings across the Nwoya district to engage the local community in children's early development, providing Early Childhood Development training to 36 care-givers and mobilizing nursery teachers into teacher-changer networks to explore each other's knowledge.

We have also been holding workshops where teachers can learn how to create engaging teaching materials that are free or cheap to produce, which will stimulate their pupils' learning; the jumpstart! nurseries are already looking so much brighter and more exciting.

At the nurseries we are working with, we have commemorated jumpstart! by planting tree seedlings. We are delighted to have partnered with such committed nursery centres that are passionate about their students' development and education!

Meet Julia

Inspired by the idea of getting to know different communities, and seeing the positive changes African Revival's work brings about, Julia Just joined us as a fundraising and communications volunteer in Zambia, before becoming the Programme Manager in November 2013.

Construction at Juba Road primary school

Teacher accommodation is a real issue for rural schools in northern Uganda, and so we're delighted to be building a teachers' house at Juba Road Primary School. The work began in April, and our contractors have been hard at work to build a high quality structure. With the roof now fitted, the team is working on the final touches, such as plastering, painting, and installing solar panels. The school has established a committee to maintain the building, Maintaining close relationships with the communities we work with is very important to Julia - and conducting regular school visits, and organising community meetings are an integral part of her role.

For Julia, her job really is all about "being part of the process of supporting children and teachers alike, as well as improving the teaching and learning environment of so many pupils and teachers. "

Together with the former Programme Manager Lois Cochrane, she initiated the Happy Reader Literacy Programme as well as a teacher training programme.

Along with her colleague Dave, Julia manages our construction projects and enjoys "seeing the final stages in building and how things come together".

"I love the fact that we are in personal contact with every person involved."

so it stays in top condition for many years. The house will be ready at the end of July, so keep your eyes peeled for the grand reveal soon!

New projects starting in Zambia

Good news for Siamwaamvwa Community School

Last year, we built three classrooms at Siamwaamvwa Community School, located in the rural southern region of Kalomo District of Zambia. However, the school is still lacking some basic infrastructure, so in June, we were thrilled to start work on latrines.

government has agreed to send two trained government teachers to support the currently overworked community teachers.

Thank you for all your generous donations which made these works possible! We are delighted to be able to support this committed school and community in providing quality education to the district's children.

With your help, we also hope to provide the school with quality learning materials to optimize the children's learning.

"The Community is extremely excited and wants to start with the teacher house also!"
